'1573' is one of the oldest schoolhouses in the UK.

The boy's grammar school was built around 1573 using stone, timber, and lead from St Peter's church that had been demolished following an appeal to Queen Elizabeth I. The royal coat of arms is displayed over the entrance.

Details of the school curriculum have survived and can be seen outside at the back of the building. At its height, around 130 boys studied here, but by the 1830s attendance had fallen dramatically as rival schools opened in town. It closed in 1841.

The restaurant was founded in 2009 & with the original structures of the building in place, it gives the restaurant an authentic and historic atmosphere.

Pupils attended lessons six days a week with a half-day on Thursdays. Summer hours were 5am – 5pm with a two-hour break and in winter 7am-5pm. Subjects included English, Latin and Greek grammar and the older boys were expected to speak Latin to each other. At its height, around 130 boys studied here, but by the 1830s attendance had fallen dramatically as rival schools opened in the town. It closed in 1841.
